

Non nova, sed nove - Not new things, but in a new way

Welcome to Rotapalor

ENERGY FROM THE WAVES

An expandable pump leaves all the options open!

It would be fascinating but difficult to predict the future. We are not even about to try, but it looks like the human kind is facing two challenges, into which all of us need to find some novel solutions. We believe, that there will be an ever growing demand of electricity and pure, potable water.

Therefore we will need new and varied solutions to produce energy, in addition to present power plants. It will be essential to produce potable water locally, with minimum environmental impact and with minimal cost.

Our solution to both of these challenges is our new expandable pump platform.